Welcome to a 'Sandpit' event

Today's 'Sandmaster':

Jonathan (NBS)

The 'Sandpit' (Ideas Factory) is about finding a new way to generate 'insight' coupled with real-time peer review. The aim is to stimulate highly innovative and more risk-accepting views that would be difficult to conceive under normal circumstances – with prioritised and captured outcomes.

The sandpit is an intensive discussion forum where free thinking is encouraged in order to delve deep into the problems on the agenda in order to uncover innovative solutions.

Each sandpit is led by a director, whose role is to define the topic and facilitate discussions at the sandpit event. The process can be broken down into:

Defining the scope of the issue.

Agreeing a common language and terminology amongst people from a very diverse range of backgrounds and disciplines.

Sharing understanding of the problem domain, and the expertise brought by the participants to the sandpit.

Taking part in break-out sessions focused on the problem domain, using creative and innovative thinking techniques.

Capturing the outputs in the form of a research project.

Sandpits are intensive events..

Owing to the group dynamics and the continual evaluation it's not possible to dip in and out of the process. Participants stay for the whole duration of the sandpit event.

Chatham House rules apply:

When a meeting, or part thereof, is held under the Chatham House Rule, participants are free to use the information received, but neither the identity nor the affiliation of the speaker(s), nor that of any other participant, may be revealed.

The Rule allows people to speak as individuals, and to express views that may not be those of their organizations, and therefore it encourages free discussion.

Speakers are then free to voice their own opinions, without concern for their personal reputation or their official duties and affiliations

Welcome to your 'Sandpit' event

Tribes and Clusters

Are networks really just tribes – ‘communities of shared interest’

Tribes and Clusters

- Are networks really just tribes – ‘communities of shared interest’
- Tribes need norms and values...co-opetition and co dependence
- Tribe cases – the importance of meaningful ‘talk’ and ‘networking facilitation’

Social Tribalism

tribalism

- Seek the experience of shared emotion

Tribe – the meaning

tribe

- Borrowed from anthropology – a characteristic of anarchic societies, where social order was maintained without the existence of a central power

tribe

- The same characteristics as an 'ethnic group' but on a smaller scale: local, linguistic and cultural homogeneity

tribe

- But bigger than a clan: kinship, lineage and other blood related attributes

Tribe – the conditions

Tribal vs 'normative' marketing

Tribal vs 'normative' marketing

- A tribe is defined as a network of heterogeneous persons – in terms of age sex, income etc – who are linked by a shared passion or emotion; a tribe is capable of collective action, its members are not simple consumers, they are also advocates

Tribal vs 'normative' marketing

- A segment is defined as a group of homogenous persons – they share the same characteristics – who are not connected to one another; a segment is not capable of collective action, its members are simple consumers

or

- Hard core - a commitment and ideology that is full time and enduring and act as opinion leaders for the ...
- Soft core – demonstrate less commitment and willingness to submit to the ritualised practices of the group...
- and wannabe (pretenders) show great interest but only delve superficially into the ethos serving as an audience and material support to the hard core and soft core members
